Face the Future: What does exponential acceleration mean for you? Anders Hvid, Jannick B. Pedersen
More than anything it is the technological development that drives the fundamental changes in our world.

For decades, we have come to understand that digitalization develops rapidly. But what is new, is that biotechnology, robotics, artificial intelligence and many other technological areas are turning digital. Over time these technological areas will go through the same accelerating development as information technology has gone through the last 50 years - they will grow exponentially. Face the Future will give you insight in developing technologies such as biotechnology, robotics and artificial intelligence. You will also be introduced to new terminology and a methodology for better understanding exponentially accelerating technologies.
